

Apostolos Kamekis short CV

Apostolos Kamekis is Doctoral Candidate in the Department of Medicine at the University of Crete with subject: “Prescribing in Primary Health Care in selected countries of southern Europe: Design and evaluation of pilot interventions to upgrade the circumstances in a European research program”. He studied political science at the University of Crete (2002-2007). He is holder of MA in Political Analysis and Political Theory (2009). He has participated in international conferences in Greece and E.U. countries and has published on European Politics, Immigration, Political Parties, Public Policies, Educational Policy, Lifelong Learning and Health Policies. He is a researcher of the Centre for Human Rights of the Department of Political Science of the University of Crete and in the Department of Social Medicine and Primary Health Care of School of Medicine of University of Crete.