

Professor Panagiotis Karkatsoulis
Hellenic Ministry for Administrative Reform and eGovernment
National School of Public Administration
The 2012 Winner of the International Public Sector Award of the American Society of Public Administration

Panagiotis Karkatsoulis is a policy analyst and advisor. His expertise lies on law drafting, simplification, and regulatory reform. He has run several administrative reform projects, among them, the one-stop-shop for citizens (KEP) which is the most successful reform in Greece in the last 30 years. He is also a Professor at the Hellenic National School of Public Administration. He is member in several Better Regulation committees and he has served as a good Governance and public administration reform expert to some major international organizations (OECD, World Bank, UN).

Dr. Karkatsoulis has also worked as a policy adviser for foreign governments (FYROM, Kosovo, Georgia, Uzbekistan, Syria, Indonesia). He has published several books and articles on current administrative science issues. In 2003 he has been awarded the “Senator Peter Boorsma Award for administrative excellence for his contribution to the theory and practice of administrative reforms” by the American Society of Public Administration. In 2011, he designed the methodology and the tools for the data collection needed for the delivery of a functional review of the Greek public administration by the OECD.

In 2012 he has been awarded the “International Public Administration Award” by the American society of public Administration.